

I am writing regarding proceeding 02-278. As a residential Indiana telephone customer, I wish to express my desire that the FCC not consider any rules that will weaken the existing Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. Since adding my name to the Indiana Attorney General's "No-Call" list, the number of unsolicited calls my family receives in a given week has dropped from eight to zero. I truly feel this law has improved (in some incremental way), my family's standard of living. Our private time is no longer intruded upon by someone attempting to market a product or service we're not interested in.
